SUMMER LEISURE.

FESTIVAL DAYS AT SARATOGA.

BEAUTY OF THE SUMMER FOLIAGE—CONVENTIONS OF RELIGIOUS BODIES—PLANS FOR THE SUMMER. FROM THE REGULAR CORRESPONDENT OF THE TRIBUNE. SARATOGA SPRINGS, June 9 .- The residents in this National resort are now enjoying superb early mer weather, and the buds of a late and backward spring blossom and welcome the gaze on every hand.
The verdant hue of the prolific foliage clothes nature in garb that is refreshingly handsome. When that high scelesiastical congress, the Presbyterian General Assem-bly, convened here on May 17 last, the partly developed aves on the trees furnised Saratoga's distinguished ruests evidence that the Ice King had tarried longer than usual this year; but, thanks to the smiling influen of the warm sun, before Moderator Hatfield dropped his gravel on the thirteenth and closing day of the Assembly, the stately elms were rounded out in attractive

The religious convention season, which was opened this year by the Presbyterians, who were joined by the Baptists and followed by the Congregationalists, marks an important succession of events in Sara-toga's local history. These gatherings brought here 4.200 representatives of three of the leading denominations of the country, and a finer class of people were never entertained by Saratogians. The Presbyterians Ill meet here again in May, 1884. It is understood that the National anniversaries of the Baptists will also assemble in Saratoga at the same time. The Congrega-tional American Home Missionary Society, which con cluded its fifty-seventh anniversary here on Thursday evening, and yesterday was entertained with a collation at Saratoga Lake, will probably convene in this village in the first week of June, 1884. This was the first time that a Congregational body ever met in Saratoga, but it will not be the last. The delegates were favorably imsed with Saratoga as a convention resort, especially at this period of the year, and, though not yet announced, it is understood that the American Home Mis sionary Society will hold its 1884 session here. This attracted here over fifteen hundred ladies and entlemen, and included representatives from every State in the United States. The Congregationalists have ne six or eight denominational societies or branches similar to the one just held here. Several of the leading members of this Church, in conversation with THE TRIBUNE correspondent, assured him that the Congregationalists have in contemplation the selection of some permanent place for the regular gatherings of these and that it is more than possible that Saratoga will be chosen. The entertainment of people has been reduced to an exact science here.

The collation provided for the Congregational delegates at Saratoga Lake yesterday afternoon was somehing as novel as it was successful. It was given by the energetic ladies of the New England Congregational Church of Saratoga Springs. Among those who attend this church are Mr. and Mrs. Carey B. Moon, of Moon's well-known Lake House. They kindly and gener-ously placed the Lake House, including all its facilities for entertaining large numbers, at the disposal of the ladies. Two train loads of delegates were carried to the lake shore, and throughout the afternoon and early evening the collation-picnickers had a most enjoyable time. The dining halls of the famous road-house were thronged. The bill of fare was a gem in every particular. The ladies of the Congregational Church made a fascinating corps of waitresses. Dinners were given to almost 800 persons. The weather was perfect and all enjoyed themselves heart's content. The collation proved a very happy close to the convention duties.

Regular trains are now running to Mount McGregor where to-day the Dana Natural History Society, includ-ing its Troy branch, and the Saratoga Field Club, are rusticating and pursuing their specialty under a cloud-less sky. The improvements at Mount McGregor are being expedited and will shortly be completed. The new art gallery there, situated in a building specially erected for this purpose, is an attractive feature. W. J. Arkell, the vice-president of the Mount Me-Gregor Railway and Improvement Company, who is well and favorably known among artists, having entertained them here and elsewhere, has here a collection of 180 pictures. They are viewed daily by a lection of 180 pictures. They are viewed daily by a large number of strangers and citizens. The Stoom and Coale art galleries, stuated on South Broadway in this village, are almost completed. The work of putting in order the United States, Congrass, Grand Union and Ciarendon Hotels is being rapidly pushed forward, and they will be in readiness for opening in a few days.

All of the smaller hotels and boarding houses are now open, and the arrivals are increasing in numbers daily. The prospects of an "immense season" were never more flattering.

The Temple Grove Seminary commencement begins with the baccalaureate sermon to-morrow evening by the Rev. C. F. Dowd, and will conclude with the reception to the graduating class on Wednesday evening next. The graduating class consists of the Misses Helen J. Sherman, Agnes P. Ritchie, Susie N. Cross, Hattle F. Merchant, Mary Harmon, Mary Lasher and Jessie W. Rodgers.

Saratoga is about to experience something new in the line of conventions, as the New-York State Undertakers' Association will meet here in "solemn conclave" on line of conventions, as the New-1 of State Constraints.

Association will meet here in "solemn conclave" on Thursday, Friday and Saturday next. That the undertakers follow so close upon the hoels of the clergymen should not justify the inference that Saratoga has been prayed for and is now ready for interment. Among the papers and addresses to be made, the titles among the papers and addresses to be made, the other bear a grotesqueness that might amuse—an undertaker. "The Experience of a Life," "The Past and Present," "Embalming," "The Modern Undertaker," are included smoong the subjects. The Pampmakers' Association of the United States has perfected arrangements for meeting here on June 13.

The National Educational Association, which meets here on July 9, 10 and 11, will, it is expected, attract a

THE OCEAN VEILED IN FOG-IMPROVEMENTS IN

by the way of Bay Ridge found plenty of breeze at the pier pavilion from which the D. R. Martin starts. From Bay Ridge to Manhattan Beach the ride assumed varied To the agriculturist it was noticeable that the potatoes and cabbages, between which the land is about equally divided, are doing well, while the corn has got a good start. The botanist would have noticed that while the great masses of dog wood blooms which filled the woods a week ago have now disappeared, the blackberry bushes are in full flower, and the ox-eyed daisy and red clover are at their best. Passengers who were alert en route for new and awful forms of advertising sighed with relief to discover that the glittering heights of Yankee ingenuity and audacity in that direction had already been exhausted. From the tailor's point of view at the beach it was a good day for light overcoats. The thermometer was far less ambitious than in the city and the sea was hidden by a fog.

Among the prominent visitors at the Manhattan Beach Hotel were the Marquis of Casa Montalava and family, and Mr. Breslin, the proprietor, who occasionally runs down from the Gilsey House to inspect his caravansary by Fireworks at Manhattan Beach will be given the sea. on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings, beginning with Thursday night of this week. A full-dress rehearsal drill of the troops to be suployed in the pyrotechnic spectacle of the bombardment of Alexandre will be held at the Armory of the 13th Beginnent in Brooklyn, on Monday night, under command of Colonel Denslow, and reviewed by Colonel Austen and staff. Mr. Pain. manage of the fireworks for the past five years, brings over eight men with him from England, and employs ofteen men in this country.

Pollowing the example of Manhattan Beach in the mat ter of fireworks, which were patronized by 45,000 people last season, the displays at Brighton Beach this year will be given in the race track inclosure on Wednesday and Friday nights, under direction of Mr. Warden. The price of admission will be 10 cents, and 25 cents for ad-mission and a reserved seat.

Friday nights, under direction of Mr. Wasden. The price of admission will be 10 cents, and 25 cents for admission and a reserved seat.

The lawns around the Manhattan Beach Hotel and the Oriental are in perfect order and the flowers are now blooming in the befs which a few days ago were barren. The walking between Manhattan Beach and Brighton is bad unless one is equipped with rubber boots, but a large gang of workmen are hurrying the Marine Railway to completion. It was stated that trains would be running to-day, but a good deal of work remained to be accomplished at stundown. Work on the bathing pavilion at Brighton Beach is being pushed, but much remains to be done. It will open on June 15. The grounds are filled with piles of débris and driftwood cast up by last winter's waves. The Rev. T. De Witt Talmage was at the Brighton Hotel yesterday and late in the afternoon four or five hundred Brooklyn people visited their favorite resort. The Cincinnati Band of forty men, under the leadership of Louis Bailenberg, will give the first concert at Brighton for the season. The clevated trains between Brighton and West Brighton have not yet started running, but the 5-cent carriages are on duty. At West Brighton the sound of the saw and hammer and the busy strokes of scores of workmen showed that the faith in the business to be done at the democratic end of Concy Island is perennial. The merry-go-round has taken the form of boats under full sail, while the nondescript animals of previous years have been relegated to a new pavilion nearer the Iron Pier.

Trains begun running yesterday on the New York and Sea Beach Railway. The Sea Beach Palace Hotel will open this week.

THE TRIBUNE FRESH AIR FUND.

To the Editor of The Tribune. SIR: Last summer two little girls in Plainfield, N. J., Josic and May, held a fair for the bone of "THE TRIBUNE Fresh Air Fund" and succeeded in raising a small sum for this object. Recently they have repeated the experiment on a larger scale, and through the generous assistance of their friends have realized $130, which they send to the "Fresh Air Fund" with their best wishes for its success during the coming summer. Herewith please find check for the above amount. Very truly yours,

THREE STUDENTS DROWNED. [BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.]

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 9 .- Several young nen students at Caivin Institute, a religious school of the German Reformed Church, went out to swim in the Cuyahoga River last night. Henry Funkey, a young man of twenty-two years, started to swim across the river, but he was carried struggling down the stream by the strong current. His companions went to his assist-nce, but before they reached him he threw up his hands ance, but before they reached him he threw up his hands and sank. His comrades tried to find his body, and three of them, William Van Holt, Charles Kiela and William Van Nate, in swimming about were caught in the current. The two other boys tried to save them, but Klein and Van Holt soon sank and were seen no more. Young Van Nate managed to get near to shore, when his companions rescued him in an exhausted condition by means of a pole. The work of dragging the river and searching for the bodies has been going on ever since, but up to this hour no bodies have been found.

MR. HAVERLY'S FINANCIAL TROUBLES.

CHARLES H. M'CONNELL TO ASSIST HIM OUT OF HIS

DIFFICULTIES. Charles H. McConnell, whose name has been connected with that of J. H. Haverly so frequently of late, arrived in this city last night about 9 o'clock. He registered at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, and in a short time was closeted with Mr. Haverly and their lawyers, Messra Townsend and respective Jenkins and A. Hummel, the latter acting as Haverly's adviser. A TRIBUNE reporter found the council of war assembled in Mr. McConnell's room at the "Well, sir," said Mr. McConnell, "I am ready to answer any questions, but as we have a long night's work before us, you must excuse my answering them at any great length. As soon as the first attachment was any great lead Mr. Haverly telegraphed me at once, urging me to take steps to secure myself; for, as I suppose you know, he is indebted to me in a very large sum, how large I have never yet stated to any one, and never "It's quite as large as I care for." ruefully interjected

Mr. Haverly.
"Never mind that, Jack," said Mr. McConnell. have not got it now, and should be no worse off if I never got it. Well, sir, I came on as soon as I could after getting the dispatch, and am here to pull my friend out of the hole he is in. Understand distinctly, he is only my friend, and no pertner in any shape or form. I shall, I hope, get rid of the attachments very soon. As to the American Exchange Bank, I shall settle that by 10 o'clock on Monday morning, for I am personally responsible for the greater part myself. Shook's matter, too, I shall arrange, for he is really friendly. Now as to the first attachment by Colvills and Gilmore. They try to make out that it was perfectly friendly, but I have my own idea about it. I guess they wanted to get the theatre cheep, but I'll let by Colvills and Gilmore. They try to make out that was perfectly friendly, but I have my own idea about it. I guess they wanted to get the theatre cheap, but I'll let them see that no $13,000 is going to get Haverly's Fourteenth Street Theatre. As to what Mr. Haverly said to you last night in relation to his quitting the business, it was dependent on his coming to some arrangement with me. I don't mean to let him do it. I don't want to run a show. I did it hast summer when he was in Europe, and I'll be shot if I do it again. No, sir. Mr. Haverly will run bis Fourteenth Street Theatre for six years longer, unless he gets a better one mean while, and I think it's likely he will."

Mr. McConnell is a theatrical printer of Chicaco who does an immense business. According to Mr. Jenkius, his lawyer, he has been lending Haverly large sums for some time back, and has at last got tired of the amusement. Though perfectly friendly, he wants to get some of his money back, and will so lie Mr. Haverly down that that result will be secured. He will keep control of the various properties and allow them to be redeemed one by one till the account is finally square, but will not himself meddle with the management.

A MANAGER SHOT BY A REPORTER.

THE RESULT OF A MIDNIGHT QUARREL ABOUT A WOMAN.

Kansas City, Mo., June 9 .- Shortly after adnight last night, George Fredericks, proprietor of the Theatre Comique in this city, was shot through the head by John Bell, are porter for The Evening Star, in the hall-way of a lodging-house opposite the theatre. The trouble was about a woman, Mattie Hartline, who was known as Fredericks's mistress. She was the only witness of the affair, and stood above the men at the head of the stairway in the dimiy-lighted ball. Bell claims that Fredericks was trying to draw his revolver when he that Fredericks was trying to draw his revolver when ac fred, and that he shot him in self-defence. At 2 O'clock this morning Fredericks was still alive, but recovery was considered impossible. Bell is about twenty-five years of are, unmarried, and his home is in Lafayette, Ind. His real name is Orth Augustus Stein. He came from Colorado shout a year ago in connection with some de-tective work, and passed under the name of John Bell, which name he has since borne. He was for three years city editor of The Leadville Chronicle, and has been conneeted with several newspapers in the West. WINDOW GARDENS IN THE CITY.

PAVORITE PLANTS IN BOXES AND BEDS.

In rambling through the city streets at this eason an interesting study may be made of the number variety of window gardens which is the dreary wastes of bricks as enliven stone. The finest are to be seen in Fifth-ave. William H. Vanderbilt's house has on the first and second stories atone vases which are filled with flower ing plants, and Cornelius Vanderbilt's house, further up the avenue, shows a marvellous wealth of beautiful plants on its window-sills. Some bouses are brillian with flower-boxes in every window. The favorite plants are the daisies-which send their white blooms high above all the rest-scarlet and pink geraniums, yellow calceelarias, and blue lobelias, while hang-ing from the boxes in graceful festoons are trailing-vines of Euglish and German ivy and nasturtiums with crimson and golden blossoms. In one corner house there is an oriel window on the second story placed exactly across the corner, and around the three sides of it are arranged boxes which are a mass of solid green and scarlet-green tvy waving below and scarlet geraniums all of one shade glowing above. One of the fine corner-houses in Madison ave., is really a refreshment to the eyes in these ho days. It has rather a deep yard around its two sides In the yard are lovely beds of pensies and strange tropical palms. The house itself has a wistaria vine climbing ever it, while at every window on both sides there are poxes filled with flowering plants.

Many of these pleasant little gardens are des tined to a brief life. The wealthy New-Yorkers, who will soon leave the city, care only for the beauty of the flowers while they are at some. And so the boxes are filled with a variety of plants, all forced into bloom far in advance of the time they would blossom in the open air. These artificia growths reach in May or June the glory that would not naturally be theirs until July or August, and having exhausted the vigor of their life, speedily fall into decay When those for whose pleasure they have been force into unnatural blossoming are away at the seaside ocean, the flowers will be all faded and brown, as if premature autumn had come to them.

The most satisfactory window gardens for those who are in town all summer are those where the plants grow from seeds or from slips. These make their natural prog ress through the season and are assaile by no premature blight. Many such ma by no premature blight. Many such may be seen among the more humble homes of the city. There is in Third-ave, one which has been specially notleoable for several successive summers. A long box runs across two windows. In spring the little seedlings may be seen coming up out of the sold carth. By June some of them are beginning to flower, and in July or August the little garden is a glory of color with yellow coreopais, crimson petunias and verbenas of every tint. It is surprising how many wanderers from the winged life of the fields these gardens will attract—buzzing bees, saucy yellow-lackets, and sometimes in the June mornings bright butterflies will fluiter over the flowers.

SMUGGLING BY SAILORS.

EFFORTS OF CAPTAINS TO PREVENT IT --- ACTION OF CUSTOM HOUSE OFFICERS.

The expressed determination of Special Treasry Agent C. S. Brackett, followed by his instruction to subordinates, to make a more practical effort to stop the practice of smuggling by firemen and sailors of vessels, meets with the general approval of captains and irst officers of vessels. In the past the operation of the law has been such as to work great injustice to these officers, who have been held liable for the delinquencie of their subordinates. Finding that they were not held personally responsible the sailors have not hesitated to attempt the smuggling of cigars, cigarettes and liquors Scarcely a vessel arrives here from the West Indies or Mexico that the Custom House detectives do not discover and seize thousands of cigars and cigarettes that have been secretly stowed away in the coal bunkers, in the bilges, ander the boats, in the ventilators, or rolled up sails or awnings. These packages of cigars and cigarettes have not been stowed in these secret recep cles throughout the voyage. Captains of vessels have become so discouraged by an accumulation of penaltic for attempts at smuggling by individual members of their crews that they make a careful search of every avail able part of the vessel three or four times on every trip. But they can't get under the coal nor examine thou oughly the skin of the ship and the bilges, where in all probability these cigars are stowed away. It has been said that they ought to prevent the packages from being brought on board at the port of departure, but that is inpossible. No captain can be on both sides and at both nds and all over the vessel at the same time. Besides members of the crew make arrangements with confeder ates who send the cigars on board as freight. When such packages are brought on board the distinguishing marks are recognized by the sailors and the packages are stowed away in a place where they can be readily found. Sometimes these snungled goods are thrown overboard in the Bay when every officer is forward and everything is in confusion. This is a most favorable time to snunglie, the articles are placed in rubber bags and thrown overboard. Confederates who represent themselves as boarding-house runners, but who are really professional amugglers, pick these up in smail boats and pull ashore at staten island or Bay Ridge and deliver them.

The law of 1799, which made a vessel from which a certain amount of goods was landed without paying duty liable to be confluented, was mended on February 8, 1881. This relieved the vessel from selure unless it could be proven that the owner was a consenting party to smuggling. Since then the law has been construed to make the master of the vessel liable to heavy penalities for each offence. Section 2.867 of the Revised Statutes provides that if dutable goods have been landed from a vessel before reaching her pier the captain is made liable to a penality of the value of such goods. This law has been construed so as to work great injustice upon captains who are in no way actually responsible, and who have used every effort to prevent smuggling. If these flues were paid captains would have to abandon their profession. A case in point was that which occurred on an American steamsible a few months ago. The awaings were taken down after passing Cape Jatteras and stowed in the hold on the cargo. The following day they were removed to the deck to facilitate the discharge of the cargo. Several hundred cigars were found rolled up in the awaing which had evidently been put there then hight pefore. The captain directed that they be given to the Custom fluose (flicials, which was done. A few days afterward the captain received a notice that he was fined for smuggling. He appeaded to the Secretary of the Terasury, stating the circumstances, an packages are brought on board the distinguishing mark are recognized by the satiors and the packages are

THEW EEK IN SOCIETY.,

DIVERSIONS OF JUNE IN THE COUNTRY. A WEEK OF WEDDINGS-THE SUMMER HEGIRA

BEGUN IN EARNEST. The wedding of Miss Morgan was one of those marriages between Catholic and Protestant where the Cathedral high altar is forbidden, and the wedding took place at the residence of Father Ducey, Mr. Jules Montaut being best man. The reception, however, was at the once well-kno wn country place, now almost a city house, at Eighth-ave and Sixty-second st. This was, in the days of Mr. Dudley Selden, a delightful suburbar re-treat. With its porte-cocher, high rooms, wood-carvings and handsome chimney-pieces it had a French look and air. Many of these fine old places still exist, and are being again brought to notice by the opening of the Riverside Park. The bride wore her mother's point lace, and was dressed in Ottoman silk, with pearls and white lilaus. The company was large, and representative of the old families. Except for the great heat of the day the occasion would have been wholly enjoyable.

Many people in returning from the races have taken the Kingsbridge road home through the lovely green lanes and wooded solitudes of Inwood and Fort Washington. The glimpses of possible homes made easy of access by the elevated road and the Riverside Park have led to more than one investment in secluded lots, where one can have green trees and dandelions around him at breakfast and whence he can drive to town for

Except for the heat the expedition to Brooklyn on Tuesday, to see Miss Mary Storrs married to Mr. Philip Washburn, would have been delightful. But though the Bridge was fairly scorching, the Church of the Pilgrims was as cool and delightful as flowers and shade could make it. The Rev. Dr. Storrs brought in his daughter, and then, resigning her to the groom, stepped into the chancel. Roger Foster, son of Judge Foster, of Boston, and a great-graudson of Roger Sherman, was best man.

A large company of Massachusetts and Long Island dignituries met at the house of Dr. Storrs for the bridal reception. All the floral luxury of June was invoked to make the house and church worthy of the bride. There were five other weddings on that hot June day.

The thermometer stood at 90 in the shade as a ground of wedding guests gathered at Garrisons for Miss Fish's wedding. Swedish gloves collapsed, faces grew purple, and collars witted, for the air was like superheated stea. The carriages drew up in a steady sweltering row to Mr Fish's fine residence through bridal avenues of flowers. Miss Fish on her father's arm preceded her ridesmaids into the church. Herdress was white satin made in the English fashion, buttoned to the throat, and tongut the wrists—elegant, but undoubtedly warm. The bridesmaids looked cooler in muslin and Valenciennes. The groom was sustained by his cousin, Alexander Baring. The young couple then received their friends, and a number of New-Yorkers who had been staying at Cranston's Hotel, partook of the wedding breakfast. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Astor, Mr. and Mrs Mr. and Mrs. Tod, Colonel and Mrs. Grant, and Miss Schuyler. The young couple drove off in a sudde thunder-storm for a country house twelve miles distant. They will spend some time at Milford, Penn., after which they will make an extended tour through Europe, spending several weeks in London and in rural England. Another party went down to Newtown, L. L, wedding of Miss Kathertoe Remsen Schuschardt to Mr. Arthur Middleton Hunter. The presence of those famous riders and polo players, F. Gray Griswold, Reginald Fraceklyu, Charles A. Munn and N. G. Lorillard, gave one a Newport sensation on arriving at the cool, flowerbedecked church after the hot railroad ride. The brides maids were Miss Hunter, Miss Buckley, Miss Strong and Miss Heckscher. "The Lovely Hunters" are a tradition of old Newport, and the name must be enlarged to cover all this group. Their costumes were exquisite-white India muslin, broad sashes, big Leghorn hats tied down by broad musliu strings, black stockings and slippers. The bride wore a court dress of white satin and old point. The reception at the house of Mr. Leverich, an old-fashioned Long Island homestead embowered in trees, left nothing to be desired-except an iceberg.

The hegica to Morristown, Orange, Lenox and West Point has been enormous during the hot spell. West Point, having offered the rival attractions of the cadet examinations and the wedding of Miss Fish, is of course crowded. The guests registered at Cranston's include Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Astor. Mr. Howard Potter and family, Colonel and Mrs. Grant, General and Mrs. Culium, John H. Davis and Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Sherwood, Mr. and Mis Van Vechten of Albany, Mrs. and Miss Fellows, Mr. and Mrs. Morris K. Jeang, Mr. and Mrs. Tod and Mrs. J. B. Potter. The hotel at the Point's crowded to running over Mrs. John Bigelow gave a party on Friday evening for her son's wife, Mrs. Lieutenaut Bigelow. The young ladies go out on horseback and walk and sail. West Point never was lovelier than now.

The death of Mr. Van der Nest, the Belgian Secretary of Legation, who married Mrs. Eva Gallatin Lawrence, after a painful scandal, will recall to many persons a story which agitated Washington and Newport for many years. Mr. Van der Nest died at Cairo, where he left his wife with two little daughters. Mrs. Van der Nest, who was a daughter of Dr. Taylor, of the Army, married Henry Kingsbury when he was a cadet at West Point. He fell in the first year of the war, leaving her with one child, who survives. She then married Colonel A. Gallatin Lawrence, and one daubgter remains of that union. She then eloped with Mr. Van der Nest, whose leath closes his part of this strange history. Every one will regret to hear of the death of little Olive Whitney, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Whitney. Mrs. Whitney, who had just received from her prother the present of a large fortune, and had gone to Europe to educate her children, stepped into an infected apartment in Paris, and all her children were seized with dichtheria. One has died, and the others are very ill.

As to the movements of New-Yorkers: Mrs. Benton Harrison has gone to her cottage at Lenox: Colonel and Mrs. Grant have taken a cottage at Morristown; Mrs. John Kean and her daughters will sail for Europe on June 19; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Turnure are going to Newport very soon; Mr. and Mrs. Jesup return to the Kane cottage at Newport; Mrs. Hitchcock and Mr. Center Hitchcock return in time for a summer at Newport, as does Mrs. Paran Stevens for the wedding of her on to Miss Jones; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Drexel have gone to their cottage at Saratoga for the summer. The Strongs, the Heckschers, the Otises, the Lymans and the Hoyts will spend the summer at East and Wes Hampton; the Morgans, Belmonts and Vanderbilts will remain on the Island until the Newport season; the Rhinelanders will go to Long Beach. The party at the Brighton and Manhattan for the aces includes Mr. and Mrs Fellows, Mr. and Mrs. John Lowery, Mr. and Mrs. John Heekscher, Mr. and Mrs. Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. Bend, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Breese and Miss Breese, Mr. Wright Sanford and Mr. Montant. On Wednesday next Miss Grace Rockwell, daughter of Mr. John W. Rockwell, will be married to Mr. E. S. Johnson, in the First Presbyterian Church, Yonkers. Miss Mary Gray Curry will be married to Mr. W. A. Wolff on Thursday, at the Church of the Reformation Brooklyn. Miss Emma Lathers, daughter of Colonel tichard Lathers, will be married on June 19, at New-Rochelle, to Mr. Matthew V. Simpson, son of Bishop impson. The marriage of Mizs Artelia de Leyer, daughter of Mrs. Marguerite de Leyer, to Mr. Thomas F. Keating, will take place at St. Leo's Roman Catholic burch on June 20, and a reception will follow at the
